

University of Connecticut

Lecturer in Animal Science Department of Animal Science

The Department of Animal Science in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Connecticut is soliciting applications for a full-time, 9-month, non-tenure track position at the rank of Lecturer. This position is annually renewable based on performance. The successful candidate will work at the University of Connecticut's main campus located in Storrs. Anticipated start date is August 23, 2012.

Position description and responsibilities

The Lecturer will be expected to contribute to the departmental teaching program in both the Ratcliffe Hicks School of Agriculture (Associates of Applied Science) and in the Baccalaureate program by teaching a variety of theoretical and applied courses in Animal Science. Further, advising undergraduates in both 2 and 4-year programs is an important component of this position. Specific duties include:

- Teach Animal Science undergraduate courses in both 2 and 4-year programs
- Recruit and advise undergraduate Animal Science students
- Participate as a collaborative team member in the Department of Animal Science
- Contribute to the academic community through service at departmental, college and/or university levels

Qualifications required

Candidate must have a Ph.D. in animal science or closely related field with demonstrated teaching experience. Alternatively, a Master's Degree in animal science or closely related field with a minimum 5 years experience teaching at university/college level would be considered comparable. Equivalent foreign degrees are acceptable. The candidate also must have demonstrated excellent oral and written communication skills, and must have the desire and ability to teach and advise undergraduates in animal science.

Additional desired qualification

Preference will be given to applicants with expertise in domestic animal nutrition.

Salary will be commensurate with experience.

Applicants should apply online at the University of Connecticut's Husky Hire System <http://www.jobs.uconn.edu/> (Search #2012276) and upload a complete curriculum vitae, a brief statement (2 pages or less) of teaching interests/philosophy, list of publications, and the names and addresses (including fax and e-mail) of at least four individuals willing to provide letters of recommendation. Note: Applicants must upload all documents at one time when applying online.

Screening of applications will begin on March 1, 2012, and will continue until a suitable candidate is identified. Inquiries can be sent to Gary.Kazmer@uconn.edu, Search Committee Chair.

The University of Connecticut is an EEO/AA employer.

At the University of Connecticut, our commitment to excellence is complemented by our commitment to building a culturally diverse community. We actively encourage women, people with disabilities, and members of minority groups to apply.