

Department of Animal Sciences, University of Arizona
Lecturer and Livestock Judging Team Coach

The Department of Animal Sciences is recruiting for a full time lecturer position. The position responsibilities include teaching four undergraduate classes and laboratories in the areas of farm animal management and animal evaluation. In addition, the successful candidate will be involved in advising and mentoring undergraduate students. Mentoring includes serving as advisor to our undergraduate club and coaching students involved in intercollegiate livestock evaluation competition. Candidates are expected to have intercollegiate judging and/or coaching experience and a BS or MS in Animal Science or related discipline. The person may also pursue a graduate degree during his/her tenure as lecturer. Contact Dr. Glenn Duff, search committee chair, for further information (gduff@ag.arizona.edu or 520-626-5573) or Dr. Ron Allen, Department Head (rallen@ag.arizona.edu or 520-621-7626). Application should be made on line through the University of Arizona Human Resources web site (<http://hr.arizona.edu/>)
